

Alan: (Standing on the stage.)

Paco: (Dragging a heavy bag up the stage.)

Alan: (Paco nearly hurt Alan's feet.) WATCH OUT! (A bit angry.)
What are you doing? Hei, what's in this heavy bag?

Paco: Haven't you packed yet? Don't you know our DOOMSDAY is coming?
Dec the 21st would be the end of the world?

Alan: Are you kidding? It's our PICNIC DAY!
I am looking forward to a fun and exciting DAY OUT with ALL of my friends!

Paco: Trust me, we have to find a safe place to hide.
And these are all my belongings!

Alan: If it's really the end of the world, we couldn't hide anywhere!
Don't be silly!

Paco: Haven't you noticed that recently there have been lots of natural disasters, like earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, hurricanes , tsunamis and floods?

Alan: Even without these natural disasters, we humans are actually killing each other through all kinds of violence and war.

Paco: I know. So at least I have to prepare for the worst to come. And here I have with me all the daily necessities.

Alan: Let me see what you've got. A torch!

Paco: Torches are better than candles because they wouldn't use up our oxygen!
Not only do I have a torch but also enough batteries in case there will be no electricity.

Alan: No electricity! Then how could I charge my i-phone?

Paco: You bet!

Alan: Do you bring any water?

Paco: Not only water but I have dried food too, like biscuits.

Alan: (Sigh)
No matter what, we hope the world will not end on December the 21st. If we could survive, we would meet after the Christmas Holiday.

Paco: Oh, I wonder if our teachers would still give us HOLIDAY HOMEWORK...

Alan: STOP daydreaming! At this moment, we should treasure what we have and enjoy the company of our family and friends.

Together: Let's "Wish for the Best and Prepare for the Worst."
Thank you!
